The current NHS is facing many challenges, one of which is sustaining high quality CBME. The solution is likely to include transformation of traditional teaching to meet contemporary needs. This workshop will focus on participants' understanding of the current situation and imagine possible solutions in terms of changes and developments to practice. We think this will be an important opportunity to share good ideas and reflect on how we might adapt our practice.

There will be two groups. One will be facilitated by researchers from QMUL and the output will contribute to a wider study on the issue. The other group will run in parallel and will not form part of the research but will cover similar material. We are asking at this stage if you would indicate if you might be willing to be allocated to the research group in which case you will be asked to provide written consent on the day.

13:00 Lunch Old Library (Ground Floor, Garrod)
