

How to find out when and where your modules are timetabled to take place.

The best place to find your timetable information is on the QMUL app, which gives you access not just to your personal timetable, but to a range of other Queen Mary services. Search for 'QMUL' in your device's app store and download the app.

If you're looking at your personal timetable, make sure you are looking at the correct week. Week 1 of teaching is Week 7 of the academic year so you won't see any classes in weeks 1-6!

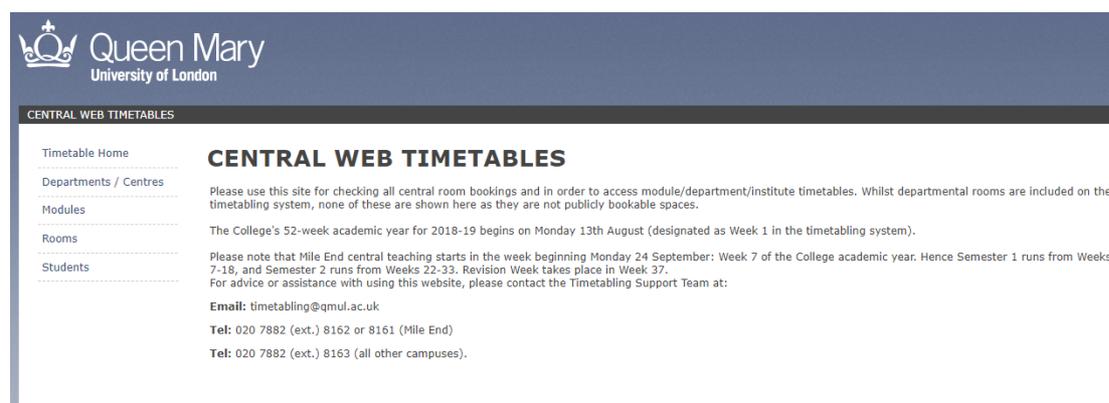

If your personal timetable is blank or is not showing up all of your modules, this is usually because you either have a clash or you may yet not be fully registered. For some classes you will need to be assigned to groups, and this process may yet not be completed. You will need to check your MySIS record to make sure you are registered correctly. If you are not, please come to the School office (Arts One Room 1.40) or contact the Education and Quality Team (Email: STA-education@qmul.ac.uk) ASAP.

If you are registered correctly but classes are missing, you can still look up the overall timetable of all of your modules. You will need to visit <http://timetables.qmul.ac.uk> and look up each module individually.

TOP TIP: Sometimes computer systems crash or are not available due to maintenance. Make sure you have a plan B and write down your modules, their times and their locations so that you have them should this occur. Write it on a bit of paper, make a note on your phone or save a document with the information onto OneDrive (or any other Cloud based server). BUT do use the app version day-to-day as any changes to time or location will be reflected in it.

Step 1

Go to <http://timetables.qmul.ac.uk>

Please use this site for checking all central room bookings and in order to access module/department/institute timetables. Whilst departmental rooms are included on the timetabling system, none of these are shown here as they are not publicly bookable spaces.

The College's 52-week academic year for 2018-19 begins on Monday 13th August (designated as Week 1 in the timetabling system).

Please note that Mile End central teaching starts in the week beginning Monday 24 September: Week 7 of the College academic year. Hence Semester 1 runs from Weeks 7-18, and Semester 2 runs from Weeks 22-33. Revision Week takes place in Week 37.

For advice or assistance with using this website, please contact the Timetabling Support Team at:
