IFLAW INTERNATIONAL FINANCE LAW

This is a contracts class. It is a transaction class. This is a deal class. We are looking at the largest Finance markets in the world and how governments and the largest companies in the world borrow and lend money. We are specifically going to examine the International Syndicated Euro Loan Market, the parallel Eurobond market and a shorter duration Euronote and 1 year Euro Commercial Paper markets as well as other specialised markets.

PROFESSOR G A WALKER

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE LAW

We will examine in further detail the structure and operation of International Project Finance and Infrastructure Finance, International Securitisation and Structured Finance including, for example, the Collateralised Debt Obligation (CDO) market which was a significant factor in the Global Financial Crisis. We will also examine Financial Derivatives (including futures, options and swaps as well as credit default swaps which were again relevant to the crisis).

This is an exciting area. This is an important area. The key point is that these markets are so large that no single government or authority can manage the risks involved. We therefore deal with this through private contractual documentation prepared on standard terms by the key market operators and their trade associations and legal advisers. We will be looking at all of the core market documentation used in this class. By the time we are finished, you will be able to manage and prepare all of the documentation necessary to support these large financial contracts.

This is a professional course. This is a market course. This is an exciting and a core course.

This is International Finance Law.
