Overview

This 1-day Tutor Training is an introduction to teaching Undergraduate medical students. It will provide attendees with basic skills to prepare students in the community, covering:

- preparing the practice and patients
- facilitation of student-centred learning
- one-to-one & small group teaching skills
- learning needs assessment
- giving effective feedback
- developing reflective practice

The day is useful and enjoyable - mixing a little theory and plenty of practical experience.

Attendees will receive a certificate of attendance.

Tea, coffee, and a light lunch will be provided.

Who can attend?

This training is open to any GPs in the North East London area who are intending to teach Barts and The London Undergraduate medical students during the 2019/2020 academic year (either at their own practice, or as a sessional GP tutor at one of our host teaching practices).

How to book:

Why Teach?

Feedback from our GP Tutors about teaching:

“The opportunities are to enthuse and inspire students and show them what an amazing career they can have in general practice. How we work closely with multidisciplinary teams and the beauty of knowing your patients and how rewarding this is”

- GP Tutor

“Pleasure to spend time with bright learners at the start of their career where positive influence, good practice and role modelling can help mould motivated and conscious doctors”

- GP Tutor

Feedback from our students about our GP Tutors:

“Really enthusiastic teacher, always had helpful sessions planned and organised teaching around subjects we wanted to learn more about. Always had a good balance of teaching and practical work. By far the best GP tutor I have had”

- Student

“Excellent GP tutor who made me consider this as a future career!”

- Student
