HOW TO PUBLISH

Route one

Publish your article open access in a journal or publishing platform that makes the version of record immediately open access via its website with a creative commons attribution (CC BY) licence or other permitted licence.*

*you can apply for an exception to use a creative commons no-derivatives (CC BY-ND) licence from UKRI by filling in their licence exception form.

Route two

Publish your article in a subscription journal and deposit your author's accepted manuscript in an institutional repository (Queen Mary Research Online) at the time of final publication with a CC BY or other permitted licence. A publisher embargo period on the manuscript is not permitted.

If intending to publish open access via a repository (route two), you must include this statement in the acknowledgement section of your manuscript and any submission cover letter or note, to ensure it is clear at the point of submission what licence you will apply to your author's accepted manuscript:

"For the purpose of open access, the author has applied a creative commons attribution (CC BY) licence (where permitted by UKRI, 'open government licence' or 'creative commons attribution no-derivatives (CC BY-ND) licence' may be stated instead) to any author accepted manuscript version arising."

PAYING OPEN ACCESS FEES

Funding Eligibility for Open Access Fees

UKRI has provided the university with an open access block grant to support payment of open access fees for eligible articles.

Articles eligible for support must be published in:

A fully Open Access journal that offers a CC BY licence.

A journal that is included in a publisher transitional open access agreement or meets the requirement for a transformative journal.

To check if your chosen journal is eligible via either of these conditions you can use the online Journal Checker Tool.

You can also check our Publisher Open Access Agreements webpage to see which agreements you have access to.

Please note the UKRI open access award can only be used for open access publishing fees. Other publishing costs (colour images, page over-length charges etc.) will not be met from the award.
